

Cyber Security Showcase Week

In review

Cyber security awareness does not end in October

You must ensure that your workforce is well equipped and aware of the ever-present danger that faces your organisation. Whilst Cyber Awareness Month is a great start, the conversation needs to continue all year-round so that you can avoid financial and reputational damage.

ISF Analysts alongside BlueVoyant, IRONSCALES, OneTrust and Tenable took to the stage this October to cover the hottest topics in cyber security. We encourage you to share these available on-demand webinars to raise awareness and strengthen cyber resilience within your organisation.

Explore the key takeaways and on-demand resources available to you.

What did our attendees say?

Cyber for All: Why cyber is for everyone
Steve Dobson, ISF

Our top takeaways

In 2021, over 90% of security incidents were caused by human error or negligent behaviour.

Start raising cyber awareness in your organisation:

- recognise that information is a key asset
- passwords and backups are extremely important
- take care with email – attackers need someone to click
- do not be afraid to call tech support if you make a mistake
- test your incident response plans.

66% of ISF Members have over 1,000 suppliers, and 16% have over 20,000.

This complexity means you need to:

- triage your suppliers by level of criticality
- regularly assess your most critical suppliers
- verify controls with risk assessments
- build the right security requirements into contracts
- have visibility over all your suppliers.
